When the new road is complete, there will be new routes for walking, cycling and horse riding; the road will also impact on some existing routes.

We have looked at all impacts and opportunities and discussed them with the Cornwall Countryside Access Forum and Sustrans, the national cycling charity, to arrive at a proposal for the area around the new road.

Where the new road crosses existing public rights of way, new routes will be created allowing crossing of the road using roundabout islands and two new bridges under the road.

We will be creating 5 ½ miles of new paths, some alongside the road, some to the side of the new cuttings and embankments and some connecting to existing trails.

Most of the new paths will be suitable for walking, cycling and horse riding, giving greater opportunity for leisure and recreation.
